COP ON CAMPUS: deputy counsels, persuades and busts kids when necessary

By TAMARA GRIPPI

AS SHERIFF'S deputy John Burke makes his way through the crowded hallways of Carmel High School he greets a student by name in his booming voice. Immediately, the girl's friends grill her. "You know a cop! How do you know a cop?"

Burke, who has been stationed at Carmel High for over a year, knows that he "sticks out like a sore thumb," on campus. That's the idea.

"Kids need to see that this tall man in uniform is a person they can talk to, not someone to be feared," said Carmel High Principal Jan Zettel.

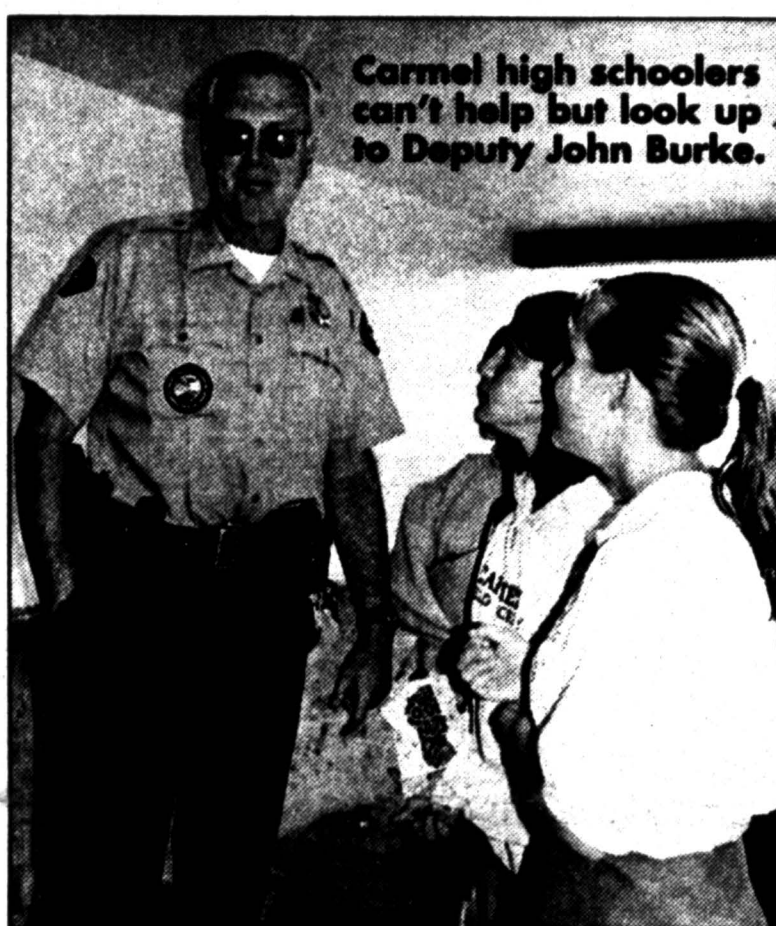

He's also there to make sure the campus is "comfortable, safe and secure."

During the 1997-98 school year, Burke handed out a total of four dozen citations to students at Carmel High and Carmel Middle School. Most of the citations were for crimes such as assault and battery (usually fighting on the outskirts of campus), theft, malicious mischief (including vandalism), and possession of narcotics (mainly marijuana), Burke said.

Citations, which are often given in lieu of arrest, can mean probation, incarceration, a fine, or some combination. And when the citations go out, parents receive a phone call.

So far, only one student has been incarcerated: a middle school student who had already been in trouble at school, was caught stealing a framed $5 bill from a Carmel Valley bakery. He spent seven days in juvenile hall.

This year, nearly all the citations have been given out for thefts. Burke cited a student on September 22 for stealing an English test from a classroom. In the past, students have circulated stolen tests by e-mail. It's a crime that could have them explaining to a judge.

Burke notes that part of his job is to put a stop to such behavior early on.

"If a student is in trouble, they not only have a consequence through the school, but they also face possible consequences through the penal code," Zettel said. Everyone agrees that the sooner young people find out about those consequences, the better.

In addition to enforcement, Burke is in charge of some projects to help enlighten the students about the law.

He makes rounds of the history classes and teaches the students about the Bill of Rights. One of the first questions the kids ask is "what exactly can police

Sales sues Carmel

By KIRSTIE WILDE

PRESERVATION ACTIVIST Enid Sales, who angered city officials last year when she almost single-handedly prevented the demolition of Carmel's Sunset Center, is taking on the city again by suing the Carmel City Council.

Sales wants to prevent what she calls "the threat to Carmel's cultural character posed by increasing [home] demolitions to make way for incompatible and oversized construction of "trophy houses" in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Her lawsuit, filed September 16 in Monterey Superior Court, charges the council with "engaging in an unlawful pattern" of allowing demolitions of what Sales calls "vintage homes" without requiring an environmental impact report (EIR) for each one.

Sales specifically targets the city council.

See SALES page 3A

This house, which has looked out on Carmel Beach since 1924, is now the focus of a fight between preservationists and the city of Carmel-by-the-Sea. Caught in the middle are the homeowners, who were told before they purchased it that the house had no historic status.

Carmel gives workers last, best and final offer

By TAMARA GRIPPI

WHILE THE Carmel City Council plans to vote on a new contract with its employees at the Oct. 6 council meeting, city workers say they won't sign it.

However, the council has the ability to implement its last, best and final offer without their signatures.

The contract would set in place a 3.25 percent salary increase retroactive to July

1. While both the council and the employee groups have accepted the raise for this year, they have not been able to resolve how salary increases should be calculated in the future.

Members of four employee associations want the city to continue using a 10-city comparison study and the San Francisco Bay area consumer price index as guides for increases. The city has used both of

FORESTERS PEER INSIDE TREES WITH HIGH-TECH DECAY DETECTORS

By TAMARA GRIPPI

THE CITY of Carmel bought more than $8,000 worth of "cutting edge" equipment designed to ascertain the health of trees — an investment city officials hope will make decisions about removing trees more scientific and less emotional.

"The council felt we had to be very sure about some of our trees before making a decision [to cut them down]," said Carmel Mayor Ken White.

The two pieces of equipment — a "resistograph" and "arborsonic decay detector" are both used to measure the density of trees. While the healthy trees should measure high density, hollow or rotting trees

Will emergency canyon repair save landmark beach home?

By TAMARA GRIPPI

AT A SPECIAL meeting Sept. 30, the Carmel Planning Commission approved a repair plan for a Carmel landmark stone mansion which is threatened by severe erosion from last winter's storms.

The torrent of rain that roared down Pescadero Canyon in the early morning hours of Feb. 3 — ripping out the bridge between Carmel and Pebble Beach — plunged through the canyon alongside Carl and Jane Panattoni's beach-front house, wiping out 10 to 12 feet of their side yard.

The edge of that bluff is now just nine feet away from the corner of the house, according to Carmel Planning Director Brian Roseth.

Since the storms, cracks in the soil near the edge of their house have deepened and are heading toward the large tree growing near the corner of the house, where the master bedroom is located, according to Jane Panattoni.

If the soil weakens and the tree comes down, the couple could lose the corner of their house.

The Panattonis plan to shore up their damaged bluff with two retaining walls.

city's permission, finalized August 4 after almost a year of study by the planning staff, planning commission and council, to allow the Donati family of Carmel to demolish a 1920s-era house on San Antonio Avenue near 12th to make room for a new home.

Caught in the middle

Ron and Alexis Donati are caught in the middle of the fight between Sales and the city. When they came to the Carmel Planning Department last year (before they even closed escrow on their house) they were advised that it had no historic designation and therefore could be demolished.

The Donati's plan to replace the house with a new one designed by Monterey architect Gene Takigawa was approved unanimously by the planning commission last November. (One commissioner described the design as "wonderful" and another said he was very happy that the proposed house was actually five feet shorter than the old one, providing a new view of the ocean from San Antonio Avenue.)

Then on the very last day of 1997 came word that the old house might be "historic" after all. Carmel attorney Bob D'Isodoro (representing the neighbors who earlier protested that the Donati's new house would harm their views and privacy) told the city council that the old one was erected by famed Carmel builder M.J. Murphy. Sales claimed to have the research to prove it.

Even so, the council decided that the house was not a significant historical building and, sympathizing that the Donatis had been "sandbagged" by the last-minute information, voted to permit the demolition.

It wasn't until later that "historical record" of the home had to be changed again, when Monterey County records showed that M.J. Murphy didn't build it, after all. But by that time, the city had done an about-face and required its planning staff to do environmental review of the demolition project, to comply with its new city policy of applying the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) to historic structures.

That study showed that demolishing the Donati's house would not have any significant impacts on the environment. No EIR is required for a project that is not likely to have any such impacts.

Again, the planning commission voted to approve the demolition, and the city council gave final approval August 4.

The Donatis were about to begin their quest for approval from the California Coastal Commission when the Sales lawsuit was filed.

'No other way'

Sales told The Pine Cone that she and the members of her group, Friends of Carmel Cultural Heritage, are upset by the "terrible loss to our history, which the city isn't taking seriously." She said the lawsuit was the only way to force Carmel to "require preparation of an Environmental Impact Report to analyze and mitigate cumulative impacts" of successive demolitions.

City Attorney Don Freeman is preparing his response to the lawsuit, and declined to reveal his strategy to The Pine Cone. He did say that the city will pay the legal bills to defend the city council.

Meanwhile, council members have an ironic bit of "Extraordinary Business" on their agenda for the next council meeting: presentation of a certificate of appreciation to Enid Sales for her service on the Historic Preservation Committee.

If Ronald and Alexis Donati get Coastal Commission approval to demolish their 1924-era house on San Antonio Avenue near 12th in Carmel, they plan to replace it with this design, by architect Gene Takigawa of Monterey.

Police & Sheriff's Log

Man threatened over too-loud television

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Department last week.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 20

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Driver of vehicle towed two weeks ago by Carmel PD was upset. Advised whom to contact to discuss complaint.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Disoriented person at Dolores and 7th. Contacted but did not need assistance.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fraudulent use of credit card at store on Dolores. $368 worth of merchandise "purchased."

Carmel Valley: Carmel Valley Road resident with Alzheimer's was transported to CHOMP for observation.

Carmel Valley: Sleepy Hollow resident reported having her garage door open suddenly during the night. An area check was conducted with negative results, however a fuse was found to be tripped in the fuse box.

Pebble Beach: 17 Mile Drive resident asked for a welfare check on one of his patients. He believed she may have been physically abused by her husband. After speaking to her and her husband, it was found that they had had verbal arguments only.

Pebble Beach: Pebble Beach resident reported seeing a Marina resident possibly poaching abalone at the ocean turnout at 17 Mile Drive. Subject denied poaching and no abalone were found on her or in her vehicle.

Pebble Beach: Individual requested that a deputy attempt to contact his mother at her Indian Village Drive residence because he was unable to reach her by telephone. Subject was contacted and was O.K.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 21

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Woman on Lobos reported that she had a dating relationship with a man for a month and did not wish to see him any more due to his emotionally erratic behavior. The man called in the morning wishing to speak to her; however, she refused. He then arrived at her home and police were summoned. Parties counseled. Man agreed to stay away.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Man contacted on Carmelo near 7th for using a leaf blower. He said he was only using an electric leaf blower and was aware of city ordinance. No further action.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Shop on 7th near Dolores reported theft of three dozen roses. Woman at shop said two adult females and one small child came into her shop and wanted to buy some flowers. All they had was a $100 bill which shopkeeper told them she couldn't cash. While talking to one adult, the other took 3 bundles of flowers from the store. Shopkeeper followed them out and saw them put the flowers in a maroon vehicle parked in front of the store. When confronted by shopkeeper, the females walked away. Officer looked at the vehicle which was unlocked and saw the flowers on the floorboard. He opened the door and retrieved flowers as evidence. Officer took them back to the shop and upon further questioning of the shopkeeper learned that she does not want any further action. Officer left note on the vehicle. About 30 minutes later a man came up to the vehicle and pulled note off. Officer contacted him and he said he knows the females but he was not there when the flower incident happened. Officer issued strong warning that prosecution would be sought next time.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a past tense possible driving under the influence. Info passed to CHP.

Big Sur: Three juveniles cited for skateboarding on San Carlos near 8th.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Man observed panhandling on Dolores. Officer advised him not to do so.

CV veterinarian avoids felony weapons charges

By KIRSTIE WILDE

PROMINENT CARMEL Valley veterinarian Gerald Petkus pleaded no contest to possessing marijuana and an illegal weapon in a plea bargain with the Monterey County District Attorney September 30, after the "star witness" in the case refused to testify.

Petkus, who owns Carmel Valley Veterinary Hospital, faces up to one year in jail and three years probation on the two misdemeanor convictions. He will be sentenced by Judge William Curtis on Nov. 10.

Petkus was originally charged with 13 felonies, stemming from a raid at his home last March by sheriffs deputies who confiscated an arsenal of weapons that included machine guns, assault rifles with silencers, grenades, shotguns, rifles, handguns and more than 40,000 rounds of ammunition.

Petkus' estranged wife, Elizabeth, was the one who tipped authorities to the illegal weapons, according to prosecutor David Alkire. He said the case against Petkus hinged on her testimony and when the couple reconciled (dismissing their divorce case September 14) she refused to

'He may have never planned to be a terrorist, but a burglar... may have very easily gotten hold of the [assault weapons and machine guns] and put them to criminal use.'

tell the judge what she had earlier told deputies.

Since wives cannot be compelled to testify against their husbands, the felony cases against Petkus fell apart.

He agreed not to dispute a single misdemeanor weapons charge: possessing a "ballistic knife," also known as a butterfly or gravity knife, according to Alkire.

Petkus' attorney, Mel Grimes, told The Pine Cone that his client also agreed that all of the guns will be destroyed.

Grimes said he hopes Petkus does not have to serve time.

"I would hope that given his background, his stature in the community, that he wouldn't be sent to jail," Grimes said, recalling that Petkus was a founding member of the Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary, served on the board of the SPCA and has been a veterinarian in the community for 35 years.

Grimes said his client's criminal record consisted of two convictions for disturbing the peace, involving two of his estranged wives.

Alkire is somewhat relieved that at least the guns will be destroyed.

"To me, there is a danger of having all these weapons in one place in a residence," he said. "He may have never planned to be a terrorist, but a burglar or someone who heard about his collection, may have very easily gotten hold of the [assault weapons and machine guns] and put them to criminal use."

Alkire said as part of Petkus' probation, he must not possess guns, ammunition or narcotics for three years, and must allow police to search him on demand during that time.

DEPUTY

officers do (when kids get in trouble)?”

Often the students are surprised to learn that police don't necessarily need a warrant to search a student, his car, or his belongings. However, Burke explains that he can't arbitrarily search a student either. "I can't act as an agent for the school," he said. "I can't search someone until there's some evidence" of wrongdoing beforehand.

As a 27-year veteran with the Monterey County Sheriff's Department, Burke knows all too well the grim results of reckless behavior. He shares them in a slide show of car accidents involving drivers under the influence of alcohol and drugs.

Burke spends about 80-percent of his time at the high school and the rest at the middle school. He has become quite familiar with certain students, but he strives to make a fresh start with the kids every day.

"I deal the incidents on a day-to-day basis," he said. "You're not guilty by proxy or past dealings with me."

The deputy explains that he has to look at each situation based on the circumstances, evidence and the attitudes of the teenagers.

"I try to be firm, but fair," Burke said. "I'm honest and I expect the same thing from the students."

As he walks the corridors of Carmel High, some students nod or wave. One tries to convince Burke to drop a citation.

Others avoid him entirely.

"Kids in this day and age are very concerned with how they're perceived," Burke said. "Someone who has a conversation with me might be perceived as a snitching crony."

But he hopes that he will be able to make the students more comfortable with law enforcement.

"I get a lot of questions about having a gun," he said. "I say, 'that goes with the job.' I've had a lot of students ask, 'have you ever shot anybody?' I tell them, 'I wouldn't tell you if I did.'"

He has office hours during the week when students can drop in and talk to him about problems they might be having. Last year, Burke was able to advise a foreign student who was afraid that she might be deported if her papers weren't in order. He's also counseled students who were having problems at home.

If Burke can teach the students anything, he hopes he can make them think twice before doing something stupid. He tells the story of a student who was caught while taking a case of sodas out of the cafeteria storage area.

The sheepish look on the boy's face showed that he knew better. But like all other cases, Burke has to take this theft seriously — which means a citation and bringing in the parents.

And when the student takes a citation seriously, Burke is ready to wipe the slate clean.

"Every day is a new day," he said.

Negotiations, which have been going on since early this year, broke down August 4 when the employee associations declared an impasse.

A state mediator met with representatives from the city and the employee associations twice, but the two groups couldn't reach an agreement. Chuck August, who is a spokesman for the employees, confirmed that they have no intention of signing the city's last offer.

Council to look at 'compromise' between Hatton Canyon and 4-U

By PAUL MILLER

A NEW PLAN to alleviate traffic congestion on Highway 1 without building the Hatton Canyon freeway is being reviewed by a traffic engineer and will be presented to the Carmel City Council at a special meeting Oct. 27.

Carmel architect Ray Parks hatched the new plan after looking at the Hatton Canyon freeway model when it was first circulated by Caltrans in May.

"I realized that Hatton Canyon would be great for cars passing through but would be terrible for local traffic," Parks said.

"If Hatton Canyon is built you won't be able to exit at Rio Road, you won't be able to exit at Ocean, and a lot of people are still going to have to stop at Carmel Valley Road," Parks said, "but there's no reason why local traffic should have to suffer just so the freeway can be non-stop."

After viewing the model, Parks — who says he has extensive experience designing road systems for projects like Pacific

Meadows — sat down and started sketching some ideas. Pretty soon he had drawn up a new plan for the whole length of Highway 1 from the Carmel River to Highway 68.

The Parks plan calls for lowering Highway 1 where it currently intersects Carpenter St., Ocean Ave., Carmel Valley Road, and Rio Road.

All four local roads would cross the Highway on new bridges, with on- and off-ramps connecting the roads to the lowered Highway 1. Traffic signals would be eliminated on Highway 1, which would be expanded to four lanes from Carmel Valley Rd. to Ocean.

Will all this fit within the existing route of Highway 1?

"It's premature for me to say with 100% confidence that my plan will work — that's what the engineer will decide," Parks said.

But the reaction of several local groups has him encouraged that a "compromise" may be the solution — after 40 years — to Highway 1 traffic woes.

"I showed my drawings to the Hatton Canyon business group, and they immediately got behind it," Parks says, "and they raised $12,000 to pay the traffic engineer to review the plan to see if it has merit."

Traffic engineer Keith Higgins will have a report ready by the Oct. 27 meeting, Parks says.

If the plan has merit, it can be submitted to Caltrans as part of the public response to the supplemental EIS that Caltrans is working on right now, Parks says.

The supplemental EIS is being prepared in response to a federal court ruling that Caltrans hadn't adequately analyzed the cumulative impacts of the proposed freeway.

The City of Carmel was one of the plaintiffs in that suit.

would measure low on the scale.

The resistograph drills a two millimeter steel bit halfway into a tree trunk, measuring the resistance on a piece of graph paper.

If the health of a tree is in question, Carmel's Forest and Beach Commission could use the readout to make a final decision, according to Mike Branson, supervisor of the forest and beach department.

The city has already tested the resistograph on several trees in town. In one case, the tool showed that a tree on private property was decayed and should be removed.

The new equipment was especially helpful in that instance because the property owners believed that their tree had weakened and moved during last winter's storms.

After the tree is cut down, the forestry department will examine the trunk to see how accurately the technology measured the damage, Branson said.

The latest piece of equipment, the "arborsonic decay detector," measures how quickly sound travels through the different areas of the trees. Transmitters and receivers send the sound waves at various angles through the wood.

City Forester Gary Kelly cautioned that the new devices are simply new tools to augment "all the other aspects of evaluating a tree."

Branson explained that an "increment bore" — which extracts a pencil-size sample of the wood — is one of the tools that the forestry department has used for years to determine whether trees are healthy.

In questionable cases, the forestry department will be able to cross-check the readings of the new tools with some of the more standard equipment.

"If someone requests removal of a tree we want to give the best available advice to the commission," Kelly said.

Operation Strobe Light shines beacon for emergency personnel

ASK ANY paramedic who has tried to find a house in Carmel at night where there are no street lights and no addresses: crucial seconds tick away even for those who are familiar with the neighborhoods.

But add a bright, flashing light at the front door, and emergency rescue workers can make a beeline for the person in need.

Carmel City Council member Sue McCloud has good advice for locals who want to be prepared in an emergency: grab one of the free strobe lights being offered through the mail by a group of Sacramento firefighters.

Called Operation Strobe Light, the state-wide program is being advertised in many current PG&E utility bills. If you didn't get one, you can also get an order form through the Internet at www.operationstrobelight.com.

Operation Strobe Light supplies, free of charge, a battery-powered, red strobe light that is to be placed in front of a residence in the event of an emergency. The caller simply places the light outside where it can be seen from the street. They then call 911, identify their location and tell the operator they're using a red strobe light to indicate the location. The operator will pass on this information to emergency responders.

When not in use, the light can be stored by the front door for easy access until it's needed.

To receive a free strobe light, call 1-877-OSL-4-LIFE.

Plan your escape route

October 4 to 10 marks National Fire Prevention Week, and this year's theme is "The Great Escape: Practice Your Fire Drills."

Firefighters urge all residents to plan and practice their family's escape from a fire.

Not only will it help you and your loved ones escape quickly and safely from a fire, it may also prevent unnecessary reentry by a firefighter to look for someone who is already safe outside.

Rescued from the wrecking ball

A teary-eyed Maggie Downer of Carmel and husband Web (bottom photo, center) accept a new sign commemorating their decades of hard work and generosity which saved the historic Perry House in Monterey from the wrecking ball three decades ago, and made it possible for the Monterey History and Art Association to acquire the home earlier this year.

The Downer's daughter Elizabeth Simpson of Washington, D.C. and son Charles of Boston flew out for a Sept. 27 surprise to present the new sign which will be placed in front of the Perry-Downer House on Van Buren Street.

One-man's magic dragon

"Sally the Sand Dragon" was designed and executed by Zack Herington of Palo Colorado for the annual Great Sand Castle Contest. The event returned Sept. 27 to Carmel Beach, where judges were blatantly and shamefully bribed with gourmet treats, shoulder massages and possibly even money. Top prize went to Holly Decker of Carmel Valley, a kindergarten teacher at Tularcitos School, who has participated in the contest for 27 years.

Stanford launches arthritis workshop

ANYONE WITH arthritis or other rheumatic diseases is invited to join in a six-week arthritis self-help program. The course is designed to teach people with arthritis techniques to management their condition and enhance their quality of life and it's sponsored by the Arthritis Foundation in cooperation with the Stanford Arthritis Center. Participants will learn about pain management, arthritis medications and the latest in exercise.

Anyone over age 18 with osteoarthritis, rheumatoid arthritis, fibromyalgia or any other rheumatic disease may participate.

Spouses and friends are invited.

Locally, the course is given once a week for two hours at the American Tin Cannery Premium Outlets, space 307, 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove. Meetings are set 10 a.m. to noon Tuesdays, Oct. 6 through Nov. 17 (skip Oct. 27).

The materials fee is $20 per person, which covers the textbook and an audio-cassette of relaxation techniques. Fee waivers are available to those who need them.

Coffee Break

By BEVERLY BORGMAN

'Tis the season for Great Debates

THE GREAT Safeway Courtesy Debate goes on. Standing in a check-out line seven-deep one recent morning I thought: Which would I rather have? Quick service or a courtesy clerk taking me by the hand to the peanut butter?

A woman reader had sent me a dissenting note on my recent column on the subject, saying, "Lighten up, lady!" My sister even chimed in with an e-mail: "I LIKE it when they offer to take my groceries to the car."

So do I, Sis. It's when they want to come home and LIVE with me that I object.

(For those readers who take literally everything I write, that last line was a JOKE.)

All fall down

They say that watching nature's creatures prepare for winter is a clue to how mild or severe the weather will be. If so, maybe you'd better go out and buy a very heavy coat. The man at MY house just ordered another cord of wood. We still had so much left over from the last order that there's hardly room to park the car. Still, you can't fool Mother Nature.

According to my calendar, fall arrived on September 23rd, but I happen to know she blew in the previous Friday. We'd gone to a 4:15 showing of the Meryl Streep-weep-er (and wallowed in it, I must admit), then came home to a driveway absolutely COVERED with pine needles. It truly looked like someone had backed up a truck and unloaded them as a practical joke. But my neighbor explained that a wind came up while we were at the movie, blew vigorously for 30 minutes, then disappeared.

I grabbed my metal "bamboo" rake and, dragging it up and down our rather lengthy drive, had cleared 90 percent of the needles in less than 10 minutes. As I dumped them on my own version of a compost pile — "anything goes" — I considered that OTHER Great Debate — Blowers or No Blowers.

To blow or not to blow

Within Carmel's city limits, gas blowers are not allowed, and so you see gardeners dragging yards of electric cord behind them. However, in my neighborhood, just a half block outside the city, the gas blower still reigns. Supreme. Often, it seems to be on those Indian Summer evenings when we've poured a mildly amusing white, and are playing gin rummy on the patio. The dust rises across the street and settles right on my four-of-a-kind!

In some communities the uproar over the noise and dust will soon reach the ballot. Commercial gardeners claim that taking away their blowers will mean more hand-raking, and will cut into their income. Ethnically diverse gardeners even claim racism. The homeowners who hire them believe they are entitled to pristine walks and driveways.

I personally think everyone's missing the point, especially in Carmel-by-the-Sea. Hey, folks, we live in a F-O-R-E-S-T! The attempt to keep walks and driveways totally clear of needles and leaves is about as sensible as trying to clean the sand from the beach. And, as we saw last winter, only Ma Nature can pull that one off.

Meanwhile, just a few blocks from my house an anal-retentive resident uses his blower to move all that nasty, leafy debris across the street to his neighbor's. He's the same guy we encountered one day as we walked past his house and cheerfully said, "Your geraniums are beautiful." He scowled back at us and said, "Well, you have to pick off all the dead leaves every day or they AREN'T."

We haven't started any horticultural conversations with him since.

Wilson signs bill protecting newspapers from ad theft

By KIRSTIE WILDE

IT IS now a crime to insert or attach any fliers or advertisements in any California newspaper without the consent of the publisher.

Last week Governor Pete Wilson signed Assembly Bill 417, which makes a person who inserts unauthorized advertisements in any newspaper guilty of "theft of advertising services."

The legislation was prompted by several incidents in which the Ku Klux Klan stole copies of free newspapers, inserted race-baiting materials inside and delivered them to homes in the Stockton, Lodi, Bakersfield and Santa Rosa areas.

The Pine Cone was also victimized earlier this year when phony "wanted posters" were inserted in copies of the newspaper and then picked up by readers — many of whom thought the posters (targeting a local art gallery owner) were legitimate. Carmel Legislation was prompted by several incidents in which the Ku Klux Klan stole copies of free newspapers . . . inserted race-baiting materials . . .

Police were unable to arrest the perpetrator because at that time there was no clear statute making the act a crime.

Jim Ewert, legal counsel for the California Newspaper Publishers Association, says the new law "provides a publisher with a mechanism to not only prosecute someone who has stolen the value of the newspaper's advertising space, but to also protect against the loss of the newspaper's credibility and goodwill that publishers may have worked years to establish."

$1,000 reward offered for arrest of deer poacher

By KIRSTIE WILDE

THE CALIFORNIA Deer Association has offered a $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of whoever shot five deer with a crossbow on golf courses in Pebble Beach and Pacific Grove in mid-September.

Jerry Wilkinson, president of the 1,200-member association, told The Pine Cone, "Let's catch this bad guy and put him in the cooler."

Pacific Grove police have a suspect in the case, whom they declined to identify until they get enough evidence to make an arrest. The man's P.G. home was searched by police September 17 and deer meat and antlers were found, but the man claimed that he had killed the deer legitimately on a hunting trip in the mountains. Police sources say the same man was arrested a month earlier with illegal drugs and a loaded gun in his car.

Some of the deer parts were sent to a DNA laboratory at the California Department of Fish and Game for comparison with DNA from a deer head found on the P.G. golf course Sept. 16.

The DNA lab was funded by the deer association, according to Wilkinson, to help biologists study animals and to catch hunters who kill animals illegally.

"There's a lot of poaching going on in California," Wilkinson said. "If you can get even a small amount of DNA evidence on weapons or equipment at the suspect's house... you've got him."

Anyone with information about the crossbow killings in Pacific Grove or Pebble Beach is asked to call the Fish and Game tip line toll-free at (888) 334-2257.

Sandy Claws

GODIVA KAPLAN, gray of muzzle but young of heart, is up and out bright and early every morning, doing her two-to-four-mile walk. Most of the time she heads for Carmel Beach as a favorite crab-digging venue. In fact, if you arrive at tide line just after Godiva has left the scene, you'll find 30 or 40 holes strung out across the wet sand where she has searched out, and in most cases, caught, a tasty little crab for breakfast. Two or three dozen make a good, crunchy protein start on the day. Dad Allen doesn't know if Godiva can hear the crabs or smell them deep in the sand, but her crustacean radar seems to be unerring.

Now 13 (the third Sandy Claws to claim a July 4th birthday — which is beginning to be a mite suspicious), Godiva has had the run of the Kaplan household since she was two months old. Dad Allen and Mom Mae impose no restrictions on Godiva's sleeping arrangement, so she chooses a different location in the house each night — which serves as a reminder to one and all that flexibility is the sign of those young in spirit.

Godiva often accompanies her dad to his Monterey place of business, Lawyers on Duty, where her office job is to bring peace and comfort to distraught plaintiffs and defendants alike by offering her head for a pat. According to Dad Allen, Godiva is well known as a healer, sharing her gift through a loving gaze and pacific demeanor.

JAZZ CELLIST Rushad Eggleston, 19, a Carmel High School graduate, earned a standing ovation when he performed at the Monterey Jazz Festival on Sept. 20. Eggleston is the third recipient of the James L. Lyons Scholarship to the Berklee College of Music in Boston, alma mater of Quincy Jones, Joe Lovano, Diana Krall and Branford Marsalis.

The son of Bob and Nazneen Eggleston, Rushad was a member of the Carmel High Jazz Band and Youth Music Monterey. He is versed in both classical and contemporary genres, and also plays guitar, bass and mandolin.

The scholarship, named for the late MJF founder Jimmy Lyons, is a full-tuition, renewable award. Satisfactory academic and musical progress in each successive year will allow the recipient to attend Berklee through graduation, tuition-free.

Treeless Carmel hasn't materialized

LAST FEBRUARY, we used this space to advocate a slight lessening of Carmel's official zealotry about its 'urban forest.'

Some of the village's looming trees inspire a heavy fear in the tiny humans living in their shadows, we said. When the ground is saturated and the wind blows 60 or 70 mph (conditions that we've often seen in the last three years), and with pine pitch canker spreading throughout the city, more than a few residents don't feel safe in their own homes.

Those fears should not be treated contemptuously by officials with the power to approve or deny tree removal permits, we argued.

In April the city council apparently agreed with this newspaper and approved the removal of a healthy pine that was feared by the family living beneath it. "One tree out of 9,000 in town is not too much," said councilmember Paula Hazdovac.

But others saw the permit to remove the tree in apocalyptic terms.

Any lessening of the city's strict policies would unleash a latent desire among the public to cut nearly all trees, these people argued.

"If you don't want an urban forest, then agree to have this tree taken down," forest and beach commissioner Roy Thomas argued in front of the city council.

"I cut down mine, and you cut down yours, and soon there aren't any trees," said Hans Lehman in a letter-to-the-editor.

The people who put forth this transparent argument are admitting that most people don't agree with them.

After all, if the majority wants to ban tree-cutting, then why would that same majority go out and cut all the trees down as soon as the law gave them an opening to do so?

Before 1900, most of Carmel-by-the-Sea was a treeless meadow. The 'urban forest' we love today was planted in the early part of this century by humans who enjoyed living with trees around them.

The vast majority of modern Carmelites feel the same way, and they support an ordinance which protects those trees — but they want the ordinance enforced reasonably, with due concern for other human values, like the safety of one's family.

With winter approaching, we can look back over the last eight months and see that the reasonable people were right.

The fact that the city council had approved the removal of a healthy pine was not kept a secret in town. We put the story on page one when it happened.

But has there been a rush of applications to cut down healthy, but feared, trees?

The answer is no.

The zealots were wrong.

Carmelites are not waiting to cut down every tree in town.

The city should have a reasonable tree policy, because that's what the people want. And the result, circumstances have proven, is that just a few dangerous trees will be taken down each year.

Many contributors to Highway 1 plan

Dear Editor:

Thank you for your editorial in the Sept. 25 issue of The Carmel Pine Cone which brought attention to efforts underway to establish a comprehensive management plan for Highway 1 in the Big Sur area, one of only 11 federally-designated All-American Roads. This spectacular stretch of roadway appears at its most fragile when, every few years, nature attempts to reclaim the lifeline which serves the community and visitors to the Central Coast.

While local elected officials played a role in conceptualizing the plan, Lee Otter of the California Coastal Commission was truly its driving force. Other proponents for the management plan include residents of Big Sur and business owners from Big Sur and the Peninsula who have long advocated the creation of such a plan. Also worthy of note is that this idea is now coming to fruition because Caltrans has dedicated personnel and resources to the establishment of such a plan: the Coast Highway Management Plan. Aileen Loe and Gregg Allbright, of Caltrans, and their supporting staff have worked tirelessly on this project for several months, calling countless meetings and convening almost 60 individuals representing federal, state and local government, as well as environmental organizations, community groups and elected officials. Caltrans has presented the concept of the Plan on three occasions to the public and welcomes public input throughout development of the Plan.

This Plan is a massive undertaking and is unprecedented in Caltrans' history. A high level of proactivity has been demonstrated by Caltrans on this project, and the

Dashing and dining on the fine streets of Carmel

By JERRY STEWART

EIGHTY-ONE-YEAR-old Carmelite Pierre Delfausse will be there once again, and he'll be wearing his running shoes.

"I'm too old to do the walk," said the former World War II mountain ski trooper. "I'm a free spirit and running is a great way to clear your mind."

On Sunday, Oct. 4, instead of cars and tourists, the soles of local residents like Delfausse will take over the streets of Carmel as the 4th annual Carmel Fine Arts 5K gets underway.

Beginning at 9 a.m., nearly 1,000 participants will run or walk their way over a 3.1-mile majestic course, which begins at Scenic and 8th, winds down around Carmel Point to Carmelo and finishes at Scenic near Ocean.

Created by Bill Burleigh, who also was the brains behind the Big Sur Marathon, the Fine Arts 5K brings out a diverse crowd for a day of running, walking and feasting. Yes, feasting.

After all, this is Carmel, and only in the city-by-the-sea would a race be followed by a white tablecloth champagne brunch (catered by Michael Jones' A Movable Feast) complete with the smooth sounds of the Kenny Stahl jazz trio.

"The beauty of the race is that it brings out a cross-section of people from the community," said newly appointed race director Elizabeth Smith, who has the distinction of being the first female race director in Monterey County. "The walk encourages all age groups, sizes and shapes to come out and have fun."

Delfausse, who has run in more than 250 races during the last 12 years, said that there's a special camaraderie that exists between runners on the course.

"It's a strange phenomenon," said Delfausse, who calls running his extracurricular activity. "Runners encourage one another, and it doesn't really matter if you're ahead of one person or behind another. It's just finishing that counts."

During WWII, Delfausse served as a mountain ski trooper in the U.S. Army — a job that entailed scaling many heights — both literal and figurative. Now, he compares running to his days of mountain climbing.

"We climb mountains because they are there," said Delfausse. "And we run the course because the course is there."

Race day registration is $30 for adults and $14 for those 18-and-under and will be available from 7:30-8:30 a.m. on Sunday.

SALARY

The Carmel City Council released the following statement: "The council is saddened that to date agreement has not been reached with the associations. In reviewing the associations' latest proposal, the council does not feel that future discussions toward agreement will be productive."

The city's final offer includes the 3.25 percent salary increase but makes no mention of future raises.

"It's a huge disappointment to me and to all of us," said August, "It's sort of like flying in the dark. If they're not going to use that (study), we don't know how we're going to come to any agreement about what salary adjustment should be."

August said employee groups are hoping to "start negotiations for next year right away and hopefully correct this."

Employee representatives said that a salary comparison study conducted by the city last January shows Carmel workers on average earn five percent less than those in the other cities, including Half Moon Bay, Marina, Seaside, Morro Bay, Watsonville, Pismo Beach, Monterey, Capitola, Pacific Grove and Pacifica. Below are some of the results for employees at the top of their pay scales:

■ Compared with six other cities, a library assistant in Carmel makes $29,412 a year, about 11% below the market average of $32,808.

■ Compared to nine other cities, a maintenance worker in Carmel makes $31,680 a year, about 5% below the market average of $33,372.

■ Compared to six other cities, a Carmel fire engineer makes $43,668 a year, about 9% below the market average of $47,448.

■ Compared to nine other cities, a Carmel police officer makes $44,760 a year, about 2% below the market average of $45,744. Kersnar said that the city adopted a salary comparison study four years ago which resulted in "considerable increases" to individual salaries.

"We certainly were able to implement adjustments that ranged as high as 20 percent for some positions besides having an adjustment for cost of living," said Kersnar.

Fialkowska returns to Carmel for Sunday concert

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

IN J.S. Bach's time, the modern piano did not yet exist. A few years ago, in the name of purity and authenticity, the piano was purged from Carmel Bach Festival performances. When that happened, festival goers lost the pleasure of hearing renowned Canadian pianist Janina Fialkowska.

The Carmel Performing Arts Festival has provided an opportunity for the Carmel Bach Festival to bring Fialkowska back to Sunset Theater in a special program of romantic compositions at 4 p.m. on Sunday, October 4.

Celebrated for her classical and romantic repertoire, Fialkowska is recognized for her interpretations of the piano works of Chopin and Liszt, and has won special recognition for a series of premiers in concert, most notably the world premier with the Chicago Symphony of a newly discovered Liszt piano concerto, "Opus Posthumous."

She is also frequently heard with the Cleveland Orchestra, Los Angeles Philharmonic, Philadelphia Orchestra, Pittsburgh Symphony and with the principal Canadian orchestras. Fialkowska tours Europe annually and has played with the Israel and Hong Kong philharmonics.

Fialkowska was born in Montreal to a Canadian mother and a Polish father. In 1992, the Canadian Broadcast Company produced a 60-minute television documentary, "The World of Janina Fialkowska," that won a special jury prize at the 1992 International Film Festival.

General admission tickets for the concert may be purchased for $16 ($14 for students and seniors) from the Carmel Performing Arts Festival at 228 Crossroads Blvd., at the Carmel Plaza kiosk, or by calling the festival office at 624-7675. A limited number of $25 Golden Circle reserved seats are available by calling the Carmel Bach Festival office at 624-2046.

Janina Fialkowska will play a romantic repertoire Sunday.

Monterey World Music Festival makes music in Carmel all weekend

IN ADDITION to all the happenings around town for this year's Carmel Performing Arts Festival, a scaled-down World Music Festival will be staged at Carmel's Sunset and Outdoor Forest theaters. This is an ambitious presentation, albeit not as aspiring as last year's inaugural event at the Monterey Fairgrounds.

Beginning with the Friday, Oct. 2 performance at 7:30 p.m. by West African Highlife Band at the Sunset Center, this year's World Music Festival offers an eclectic assortment. Look for Indian artists Jai Uttal and the Pagan Love Orchestra (7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 3 in Sunset Theater) and the Turkish Sufi Village music of Latif Bolat Ensemble (Sunday, Oct. 4 in the Outdoor Forest Theatre).

General seating (in advance) is $14 per show or $40 for all four.

Literary tea looks at land of the pharaohs

ANOTHER "Punch and Pundit" literary tea is in the offing, put on by The Friends of the Harrison Memorial Library — this time with Carmelite archaeologist Tom Logan, who has a passion for ancient history, particularly for Egypt.

Three yummy little sandwiches and cookies will be served in the library of the Church of the Wayfarer, Lincoln and 7th, Carmel, at 2 p.m. Sunday, October 4 before the lecture begins at 2:30 p.m. in the Garden Room.

By Margot Petit
Nichols

After receiving his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago, Dr. Logan taught in New York City, then worked as an Egyptologist at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Later, he became director of the Oriental Museum at his alma mater. For a time he was curator of the Monterey Museum of Art, and is presently teaching history at MPC where he also works with the college's Gentrin program.

Dr. Logan has been co-directing a dig at Karnak for several years, and occasionally conducts tours in Egypt. If the land of the pharaohs has always fascinated you, don't miss Dr. Logan (and those delicious sandwiches) at the Sunday gathering. The meeting is free and open to all.

Weber Iago

Sat. Oct. 3

Brazilian pianist and composer Weber Iago (formerly Drummond) will be making a live recording during his solo performance at the Jazz Store. His music blends traditional Brazilian rhythms with modern jazz harmonies and a good touch of classicism. His past performances at the Jazz Store have always been filled with exciting technique, interesting selections, and great musicianship. He has performed with Gilberto Gil, Herbie Hancock, Wayne Shorter, Claudia Villela and many others.

Phil Markowitz Trio

Sat. Oct. 10

Straight-ahead jazz pianist, composer and arranger Phil Markowitz has got his big break in New York in the 1970s, playing with Toots Thielemans, Joe Chambers, and eventually joining Chet Baker's group. He went on to record with the Brecker Brothers, the Mel Lewis Orchestra, the Bob Mintzer Big Band, Dave Liebman and many others. From all his diverse experiences, he has found his own place as a leader of his own trio, and has a current release on Passage Records entitled Taxi Ride.

Stephanie Crawford & The Babatunde Trio

Sat. Sept. 17

Vocalist Stephanie Crawford returns to the Jazz Store after her debut here in January. With a style similar to Abbey Lincoln and Betty Carter, Crawford garnered great acclaim in France in 1993 by winning France's highest award for jazz vocalists, the Django D'Ore. With a great repertoire to choose from, Crawford delivers a lyric with an intimate feel and dramatic flair. She will be supported by the ever-impressive Babatunde Trio. Her latest CD is The Gift, recorded on the French label, Concorde.

Claudia Villela Trio

Sat. Oct. 24

Claudia Villela also appeared at the Jazz Store this past January, and as usual, she wowed the audience with her vocal abilities. She can captivate any crowd with her Brazilian sambas and bossa novas. With an incredible vocal range and purity of tone, Villela can sing the slowest lament or scat in tempos unbelievably fast. Her latest recording is entitled "Supernova." Featured with Villela will be the brilliant guitarist Ricardo Peixoto.

shamus novel. He says he's about a year behind schedule, but is into the new book a few chapters — and he has the title, "Death on a Par Five." It's "mainly about the AT&T Pro-Am Golf Tournament," Roy says, and it will come out next year. This delay will drive fans to a re-reading of Roy's eight published Riordan novels one more time before "Par Five" comes out. Speed up the writing, Roy; I'm one of your constant readers.

Weber Iago

Sat. Oct. 3

Brazilian pianist and composer Weber Iago (formerly Drummond) will be making a live recording during his solo performance at the Jazz Store. His music blends traditional Brazilian rhythms with modern jazz harmonies and a good touch of classicism. His past performances at the Jazz Store have always been filled with exciting technique, interesting selections, and great musicianship. He has performed with Gilberto Gil, Herbie Hancock, Wayne Shorter, Claudia Villela and many others.

Straight-ahead jazz pianist, composer and arranger Phil Markowitz has got his big break in New York in the 1970s, playing with Toots Thielemans, Joe Chambers, and eventually joining Chet Baker's group. He went on to record with the Brecker Brothers, the Mel Lewis Orchestra, the Bob Mintzer Big Band, Dave Liebman and many others. From all his diverse experiences, he has found his own place as a leader of his own trio, and has a current release on Passage Records entitled Taxi Ride.

Stephanie Crawford & The Babatunde Trio

Sat. Sept. 17

Vocalist Stephanie Crawford returns to the Jazz Store after her debut here in January. With a style similar to Abbey Lincoln and Betty Carter, Crawford garnered great acclaim in France in 1993 by winning France's highest award for jazz vocalists, the Django D'Or. With a great repertoire to choose from, Crawford delivers a lyric with an intimate feel and dramatic flair. She will be supported by the ever impressive Babatunde Trio. Her latest CD is The Gift, recorded on the French label, Concorde.

Claudia Villela also appeared at the Jazz Store this past January, and as usual, she wowed the audience with her vocal abilities. She can captivate any crowd with her Brazilian sambas and bossa novas. With an incredible vocal range and purity of tone, Villela can sing the slowest lament or scat in tempos unbelievably fast. Her latest recording is entitled "Supernova." Featured with Villela will be the brilliant guitarist Ricardo Peixoto.

I don't have a hang-up about age. Honest I don't. In fact, I just celebrated the arrival of my first gray hair. I figured I worked so hard to earn it, it deserves to be treated with respect. It's good to have tangible evidence of wisdom.

But notwithstanding my magnanimous welcome to Grandfather Time, there are times my generosity of spirit takes a hit below the belt (so to speak). Case in point: an associate of mine, who looks young enough to need a babysitter, is actually a very devoted single mother. The other day, she reported that her 7-year-old son, complaining about how old-fashioned she was, startled her by chiding, "Mom!! You're so early '90s!"

Her indignant comment to me was, "Whatever happened to the '70s and '80s?!" My mind still reeling from her son's line, I was too speechless to point out that I personally didn't think the '50s and '60s qualified for dismissal, either. But as I walked away, I had to face it: like it or not, the generations had been gaining on me while I was busy looking the other way.

■ The great strides of Alliance on Aging

I shudder to think of what our communities would be like without organizations such as Alliance on Aging. I was reminded of this at the party for the Alliance's major donors on September 26th, held at Ann and Joe McGowan's Carmel Valley home. The amount of work required for programs like the "Friendly Visitors" or "Peer Counseling" is phenomenal. These individuals, for instance, are hand picked and carefully trained not only to serve as surrogate "relatives" for those in need, but also to recognize when more professional help is required.

People and Places

By Sissi Maleki

"It was a good year," said Marj Hunsicker, president of the board. Among the many AoA achievements was an expansion into King City, a good sign that the AoA's resources are growing. But the way Marj seems to lie in wait, ready to pounce on recently retired bright individuals, I'm not surprised! Such was the fate of Dr. Bob Holtrop, a neighbor of the McGowans and now the new board vice president. Or take Richard Pagnillo - or "Pag" as they affectionately call him - who struggles between his desire to be on the golf course and the bewitching siren's call of - yes, Marj and her Alliance needs!

Former County Supervisor Karin Kaufmann, just back from China, pointed out how lucky we are to have a region filled with highly educated, well-to-do and self-confident retirees who don't hesitate to take action to maintain their quality of life. According to her, "This is a hotbed of activism." (Jane Fonda, eat your heart out!)

Some merry members of the Collector's Guild, with director Richard Gadd: Suzanne Diamond, Robin Venuti, Miriam Rosenstein, Lacy Buck and Gaby Hahn.

Marj did give the guests a thought for the day, one which I still can't get out of my mind: "That which you do for yourself dies with you. That which you do for others remains immortal."

■ Monterey's Museum does it again...

I'm convinced the majority of Peninsula residents still do not realize the cultural treasure trove they have in the form of the Monterey Museum of Art. Otherwise, the building would be bursting at the seams every day of the week, not just at events like the gathering on September 25th.

On this occasion, it was the exceptional art works gathered by the Collector's Guild and the juried exhibition from local artists that drew such a crowd. Grandma Moses, Andrew Wyeth, Salvador Dali shared space not far from our own young Paxton, with his "Intoxicated Mountain Goat," among others.

Guild member Lacy Buck brought in her own Picasso, except this vividly colorful example was in the form of a jacket on her back! Much easier to watch over. Suzanne Diamond, who has spearheaded the Guild over the last few years, was bubbling with excitement over the eclecticism of the collection. Tina Flaherty, a Guild member who had lent two dog portraits once belonging to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, confessed it was the emotional aspect of the portraits that originally hooked her. "These pets were probably the only ones they could truly trust."

I caught MPC's Diane Bower taking time out from a truly breathless schedule. In fact, she just received a grant from the American Society of Interior Design to research the work of Frances Elkins, one of the earliest design pioneers and Nelle Currie's (another design legend) mentor.

Hank Ketcham, whose artist portraits were also featured at the event, called the exhibit "the greatest variety of art" he had ever seen in this area, thanks to the museum. Maintaining public access to art is a cause very dear to his heart. He spoke to me of his frustration at the IRS position that artists who donate works to museums can only deduct the cost of materials – not the market value of the item, like the rest of the taxpayers can. Thus, sadly, more and more great art works are being sold to wealthy individuals, reducing the selection for cash-strapped museums. I'd say calling the IRS "short-sighted" is probably one of the kindest phrases used in connection with it.

■ Volunteer Center celebrates new digs

It occurs to me that the Volunteer Center of Monterey County is as essential to the existence of local non-profits as a skeleton is to the human figure. The support it provides – especially in offering vetted volunteers to non-profits – cannot be overemphasized. So it was with deservedly great fanfare that the center held an Open House on September 22nd at its great, spacious new digs in New Monterey. Executive Director Jane Maines has worked so hard over the years under the most dreadful conditions that I'd say she truly deserves the corner office she now has.

But there's lots more exciting news for the center. By the end of the year, they will have a full-time office in Salinas, according to board President Craig Reimers. In the meantime, they will push for more volunteer opportunities for youth and corporate members. Onwards and upwards, I say...

■ Bath House is Titanic-ally recreated

Let's face it: donating money is great P.R. for most businesses. But what's worth noting is when they step out of the ordinary and do something memorable. Pacific Grove's Old Bath House Restaurant achieved that distinction Sept. 22nd. They recreated the last dinner served aboard R.M.S. Titanic – complete with the right costumes, the same music and, of course, the exact menu. (The Truffle Mousse Paté is one I'm going to have to look into.) And the benefit? Pacific Grove High School's Band will be outfitted with new uniforms.

Linda Mann, principal of P.G. High, was very appreciative of such an event that got "the whole community involved." She added, "This is the sort of thing that makes a difference." Linda was sharing a table with Monterey Police Sergeant John Sammis who seemed to be having a blast surrounded by his gorgeous wife Chris and his old friend from Minnesota, Lin Wells.

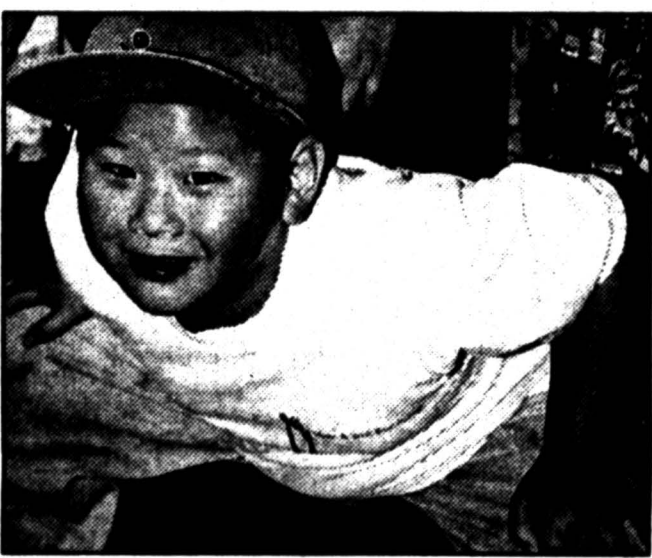

■ Simic Galleries make the right wish

With the abundance of good causes in our area, it must have been quite a challenge for Simic Galleries to find the right organization to sponsor when they searched a year ago. But I don't think they could have done better than deciding on the Make-A-Wish Foundation – granting children with life-threatening diseases their heartfelt wishes.

From the art patrons' point of view, it makes a difference, too. As long-time Simic patrons Robert Hammacher and Barbara Walman pointed out, "It's thrilling to know that every art purchase contributes to making a wish come true for a child."

One of the lucky recipients present at the brunch held at the galleries on September 26th was 7-year-old Justin, son of Carmel's China Gourmet Restaurant owner Kwan Lau Huang. Justin has acute lymphocytic leukemia and his wish was to go to Disneyworld. Make-a-Wish board member Kathy Eckerson mentioned that sometimes, the very act of seeing their wish come true actually gets the young patients on a better health track.

Make-a-Wish child Justin Lau Huang hams it up for the photographer.

HARTNELL HEARING AID CENTER

Speaking from recent experience, I was delighted with my free hearing evaluation at HARTNELL HEARING AID CENTER, and you will be, too! I was impressed with the obvious skill of the owner, Becky Ross, and her associate, Bryan Ichikawa; how easy and quick it was and the friendly atmosphere they create. They hope you'll call for your free evaluation. If you're in need of a hearing aid, they carry a full line of brands and sizes and are able to meet your needs and budget. If your present aid can be repaired on the premises, there's no charge, even if bought elsewhere. They aim to please, so you can't miss! 531 Hartnell, Monterey (next to P.O.) 372-1447.

Prim & Proper

If you want the Halloween spirit to grab hold this year, all you have to do is arrive at PRIM & PROPER – and you'll be grabbed! Absolutely charming Halloween costumes, pullovers and vests in orange, black and white with you know what...silver spider webs, pumpkin buttons, black cats, etc. For Halloween lovers, here's your answer; for cat lovers, there will be a year long. Check out the scarves and motif jewelry, too! And while at PRIM & PROPER, please see the new group by J'envie in wool gabardine. Classic elegance in skirts and pants – black, navy, taupe and camel. 553 Lighthouse, PG. 372-5563.

catherine's

Beautiful separates and jewelry at catherine's so I strongly advise you to arrive. See those by Kenar in wool, rayon and spandex in a true Oxford gray. Jacket without buttons is long and straight, ankle-length skirt cut on a bias, and sweater in gray and black with white argyle design. Stunning! And then those soft, stretch suede camel colored pants made in Canada. They're washable and as catherine says, they hug and give. And don't overlook the J. Jansen jewelry in gold and silver – very unique, made by hand, dramatic, fun, to be worn with anything, anywhere! Causing nothing but compliments! 405 Calle Principal, Monterey. 646-1565.

Do you use the Reference desk at the MONTEREY PUBLIC LIBRARY? I couldn't get along without it. For a quote by a person I couldn't remember, to the spelling of a word I couldn't find, to requesting a review in the New Yorker months ago, these people get you answers. Try them! 646-3933.

Cameras...cheese...chamber music... and a great deal more.

Christine Warren's BOUTIQUE

CHRISTINE WARREN'S BOUTIQUE is one year old, and Christine plans to celebrate with a sale! The big day is all day Saturday, October 10, so mark that on your calendar. She's adding an additional 10% off everything that is now on sale at 25% to 60% off – and that's quite a deal! Arriving at any moment, Flax's fall velour and cotton knits so you'll find plenty of choice new looks for fall and winter. Christine wants to thank all of her customers for a wonderful first year! See you October 10! refreshments will be served. 309 Forest, PG, across from City Hall. 655-3666.

Thinking about donating that old camera up in the attic? Don't! Call Russell of the LEVIN GALLERY first and tell him about it.

Russell has an urgent need for quality, classic cameras – specifically Hasselblad, Leica, Linhof, Contax, Rollei and pre-1968 Nikon and Canon. These could be worth thousands to you, so it would behoove you to even call your aunt in New Jersey! He's interested, also, in any camera accessories. As you comb through the garage and attic and closet shelves, keep in mind he's interested in old photographs too, not necessarily family photos, but possibly travel pics. Call him. It can't hurt! 649-1166.

BASQUETIQUE

Listen to your gourmet nudgings and head for BASQUETIQUE. There you'll see "California Cheese Connection," formerly of Cannery Row, has joined forces with this shop of baskets of every description with everything, I mean everything, to put in them. So now there's even more – along with the California cheese are gourmet foods including mustards, sausages, sardines, smoked salmon, oils and vinegars, dips, dressings, crackers, snacks, marinara sauces! Plan early and let Sherry in her own unique way prepare a Christmas gift basket for your business, family, friend, new neighbor, teacher, whomever! Call 394-0767. First floor of Holman's, PG.

Happy days! On Sunday, Oct. 4, you're invited for a free swim in the heated pool at the CARMEL COUNTRY SPA in Carmel Valley, #10 Country Club Way. This invitation comes from Carl Trigilio, owner of the Spa, and NATALIE

REED, one of Carmel's most talented artists, who will share her paintings of wonder and serenity in this picturesque place of wonder and serenity. Natalie invites you also to bring photos of your pets if interested in one of her well-known pet portraits. Make plans to have the foggy dew and arrive in the sun at this pleasant Country Spa, Sunday, Oct. 4, 10 am to 4 pm! Call 659-3486 or 625-3940 for more information. (No children, please.)

Buy the season! Yes, the 31st season of CHAMBER MUSIC MONTEREY BAY (formerly The Chamber Music Society of the Monterey peninsula) begins with the exciting DUN-SMUIR PIANO QUARTET on Wed., Oct. 7. The five concert series also includes the world-renowned NY PHILOMUSICA, with Robert Levin, piano, XTET, TAKACS STRING QUARTET and PEABODY PIANO TRIO, plus the 28th annual Chamber Music Competition and Winners' Concert in May. All this for only $65! Concerts at Sunset center, Carmel. Send your check to P.O. Box 6283, Carmel, 93921; or call 625-2212 for more information. See you there!

Discovery Shops

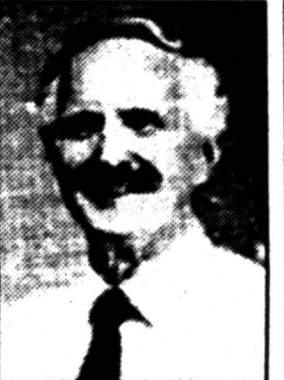

Dropped by the recently remodeled American Cancer Society's DISCOVERY SHOP and was indeed impressed. Paint, mirrors and new displays work miracles – just as the shop itself does in giving every penny to the Cancer Society. Saw a Proctor Silex juicer, like new, for a mere $6; other household items, clothes, books, furniture and don't miss the ingenious mini-Christmas trees made by the volunteers – $10 to $150. Being a volunteer interest you? Suggested time, 4 hours twice a month – cashing, pricing, selling, enjoying companionship and the good cause. Wish to donate something? Bring it in any time. 182 Country Club Gate, PG. 372-0866

Unfortunately, today due to polluted air problems, we find ourselves needing medicines to treat the symptoms. Billions of dollars are spent each year on medications to help us breathe better. Our homes and workplaces are air tight, so dust and contaminants are trapped inside.

Health agencies, doctors and scientific researchers claim that airborne dust may be one of the most important causes of health related problems. Dust also costs money. Dirty air causes dirty wall coverings, carpets, upholstery & clothing. One simple solution: THE BELMONT METHOD. Call 625-3242.

Chatterbox Children's Shoppe

In case you're looking for a winter coat for one of your young, go straight to CHAT-

TERBAUX cause Ginny has a shopful! Many of the coats have never been worn, several from such stores as Nieman Marcus and in general, you can hardly do better. Loved the dressy coat for a 2 or 3-year-old. With matching muff, a navy "P" coat with hat, size 5; a beauty in bright red with black collar and buttons, and for ages 6 or 7, an English wool coat in gray with hood. Need formal wear for a children's Christmas pageant or piano recital? Try right here! 157 Fountain, PG. 647-8701.

MONARCH KNITTING & QUILTS

Of course the name of the game at MONARCH KNITTING AND QUILTS is yarn, all sorts, all unique and all to covet! The latest, a luscious new yarn from Peru, half llama, half wool. It's called Maya and comes in spicy fall colors. Perfect for Halloween – a Lady Bug or Bumblebee hat with matching purse, easy to make, says Joan, and there's still time! One-half off on new yarns (a mixup on the order) called Mambo – luxurious rayon and cotton and an elegant look for office Christmas parties! Joan's mother, the Quilter, is in town and has brought beautiful new quilts and wall hangings. I believe it is she we can all thank for Joan's many talents! 529 Central, PG. 647-9276.

'Is this puddle taken?' — rain-tinged 'Much Ado' works

By TOM BIRMINGHAM

IT DOESN'T rain in late September, not in Carmel. At least that's what we thought when we packed up the kids to see "Much Ado About Nothing," Pacific Repertory Theatre's latest offering at the Outdoor Forest Theatre. Lo and behold, what should come out of the sky an hour before the Sept. 26th performance but rain. Not mist, actual rain.

Spirits slightly shaken, we made our way through the trees into my favorite theater in Monterey County. "Is this puddle taken?" I asked, indicating four empty spots on the bench, second row center. After some work with a borrowed towel, three plastic bags to cover the wet redwood and a blanket rolled out over everything, we settled in to enjoy the show.

And enjoy it we did! Did I mention how much I like the Outdoor Forest Theatre? The open venue with two blazing fireplaces flanking the stage, pine trees lit against the night sky topped by a quarter moon, is the best way to see Shakespeare. The wooded paths which make up the aisles are perfect for Macbeth's advancing armies. The roaring fires provide excellent flanks for the overheard conversations that make up the expository text.

I appreciated the surgery performed by Kathy Deskin-Jacobs, shortening the play from three to two hours. The ribald jests, arch deceptions and broad physical humor make this a perfect opportunity to introduce children to Shakespearean comedy. Paul Jennings as Benedick and Julie Hughett as Beatrice offer energetic and focused performances.

The plot of this "love story" is totally absurd. As Benedick and Beatrice trade insults and profess commitments to die unmarried, their loved ones naturally conspire to plot their wedded bliss. At the same time, for reasons left on the cutting room floor, the prince's brother schemes to thwart Benedick's best friend's marriage plan with his own duplicity.

Thank goodness the Master Constable (Tim Hart) arrives at about this time with the three men of the watch to lower this low comedy one step down. Once again we were roaring with laughter and hooting for more. If you could look in the face of Verges (hilariously portrayed by Phil Pratt) for even a moment without guffawing, you are clearly more cultured and restrained than I (and probably won't enjoy this show as much).

My hat is off to set designers Steve Judge and John Brady and the construction crew. They managed to build a set which resembled marble and stucco in this redwood glen. And under the leadership of Stage Manager Stephanie Whigham, they worked gamely for a half-hour to dry off the floor and props.

"Much Ado About Nothing" includes a large ensemble cast. I particularly enjoyed the droll Claudio (Henry Guevara) and the radiant Hero (Elizabeth Klaas). All the silliness is nicely set against the subtle performances offered by Michael Jacobs as Leonato and Peter Eberhardt as the Friar.

Pack up the family, bring a picnic and a small flask of something to ward off the ubiquitous cold weather, and set yourself down for some good fun.

ALWAYS ... PATSY CLINE

The Wharf Theatre transforms into the Grand Ole Opry for this Western Stage production.

The show offers an intimate look at the country music legend, and features a live band performing more than 20 country standards, including Patsy Cline's hits.

Show time is 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays at the theater, located near the end of Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. Tickets are $18 general, $16 for students and seniors, $12 for Hartnell students and $10 for children. 375-2111 or 755-6816.

ANTONY & CLEOPATRA

Shakespeare's tragic romance travels from Rome to Egypt as Antony pursues the woman he loves but cannot have.

Curtain for this Pacific Repertory Theatre production is at 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 4, and 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 8, at the Golden Bough Theatre, Monte Verde between 8th and 9th, Carmel.

Tickets are $15 adults, $10 children, seniors, military and teachers and $5 for Monterey Peninsula high school students. 622-0100.

HEROES AND SHEROES

"More action, more actors, and more props and costumes" are promised in this revival of a production that "brings to life the magic and messages of age-old folktales." Andra Weddington directs "Heroes and Sheroes" for Third Studio.

Curtain is at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 3-4, at the Recreation Center, 843 Mason Road, Presidio of Monterey. The material is "suitable for all ages over 12."

Admission is free. Details: 373-4389.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING

Reviewed on page 8B.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Fridays through Sundays until Oct. 11. Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 for children, seniors, military and teachers, and $5 for all high school students with school identification.

The Outdoor Forest Theatre is at Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel. For reservations, call 622-0100.

SHIMMER

John Rousseau directs Stephen Moorer in John

O'Keefe's autobiographical story of Johnny, a middle-aged man who reflects on his experiences as a 16-year-old inmate in a Midwestern reform school. "Shimmer" is part of the PRT Solo Series.

This Central Coast premiere will be staged at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 3 in the Circle Theatre at the Golden Bough, Casanova between 8th and 9th, Carmel. Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 students, seniors, military and teachers. 622-0100.

TAPPING THE GLASS

The PRT Solo Series continues with "Tapping the Glass," a one-woman show written by and starring Jeanne Wooster. The show focuses on a woman's final college year in Philadelphia, and her life centered around Dirty Frank's Bar.

Curtain is at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 4 and Tuesday,

Oct. 6 in the Circle Theatre at the Golden Bough, Casanova between 8th and 9th, Carmel. Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 students, seniors, military and teachers. 622-0100.

VIVIEN

Lamont Johnson directs MaryAnn Schaupp-Rousseau as actress Vivien Leigh, who was perhaps best remembered as Scarlett in "Gone with the Wind." This offering of the PRT Solo Series finds Leigh in 1967, the final year of her life, reflecting on her career and treasured relationships from her past, including Laurence Olivier, Peter Finch, Orson Welles and Clark Gable.

Curtain is at 7:30 p.m. Friday and 2 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 2-3, in the Circle Theatre at the Golden Bough, Casanova between 8th and 9th, Carmel. Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 students, seniors, military and teachers.

Big Sur extends welcome for Captain Cooper School Carnival

By TOM BIRMINGHAM

"WATCH FOR the banner spanning Highway 1 in Big Sur." These are simple directions to a simply fun event: the 1998 Captain Cooper School Carnival, set 11 to 4

Saturday, Oct. 3. The festivities take place on the school campus perched high above the Big Sur Valley, 20 miles south of Rio Road. This year's carnival is the latest in a tradition going back more than 30 years.

Entertainment will feature music performed by Nancy Raven with children's songs from Lizard Rock Music, a local mariachi band and the children themselves, who will perform song and dance routines.

The carnival is really an opportunity for local folks to get together, have a plate of tamales and beans, and discuss how nice it is to live in this little slice of heaven. If you visit from the peninsula, you can hunker down with the locals for a slice of community, Big Sur-style.

During the day, there will be face painting, pony rides, a silent auction, a taqueria, a petting zoo, game booths and prizes. The traditional Cake Walk offers everyone an opportunity to win some real home-baked treats. Holly Fasset's pastries are always a highlight of the event, so come early and scope out your favorites. The day culminates with raffle drawing. A little red ticket costs only $1 but makes you eligible to win gifts and prizes. A grand prize of $500 cash keeps the crowd on the edge of their seats right till the final ticket is pulled around four o'clock.

The money generated by the carnival is used to provide classroom supplies, arts instruction and a building and improvements fund for the approximately 80-person school. As you walk through the grounds, you will see two playgrounds, gardens, and a soon to be erected art's pavilion, all funded by past carnivals.

Domino group breaks tradition, plays outside Pebble Beach

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

THE ALLIANCE on Aging will benefit from an all-day Dominoes International 35th Anniversary Tournament on Saturday, October 3 at the Resort and Golf Club at Quail Lodge, Carmel Valley — the first time the tournament has been held outside Pebble Beach since 1966.

The First Monterey Peninsula Open Domino Tournament was held at the Monterey Fairgrounds in 1964 when members of the Monterey County Symphony Guild decided a tournament would be an excellent fund-raiser. Mary Shaw of Pebble Beach was chairman that first year, and she is honorary chairman of this tournament.

Sanctioned by the International Domino Association, the tournament commences at 9:30 a.m. with six morning games, and will resume after a 12:30 luncheon and carry through with four more games. Prizes will be awarded at 4 p.m.

First prize is $1,000. Other prizes include a week for six at a private Palm Desert resort, accommodations at various hotels, lunch or dinner at a number of restaurants, golf for two at local golf clubs, plus a other items including an Eldon Dedini cartoon, antique jewelry and two full 1999 season passes to the Western Stage performances.

Tournament participation fee is $125 per person, with sponsorships beginning at $25. Registration and a continental breakfast take place at 8:30 a.m. at the Resort and Golf Club at Quail Lodge, 8000 Valley Greens Drive, Carmel Valley.

Information: 649-0657.

✓ Quail Meadows site of free classical concert

ON SUNDAY, October 4, Quail Lodge Golf Club and Resort will host the third annual Symphony at Quail Meadows, a free outdoor performance featuring the Monterey Symphony.

Conductor Enrique Barrios will lead the orchestra in a program entitled, "Dances from Around the World." The Quail Meadows gates will open at 11:30 a.m. and the concert will begin promptly at 1 p.m. Luncheon entrees will be available beginning at 11:30 a.m. with all proceeds benefiting non-profit organizations. Chairs will be available for the first 600 guests or attendees are encouraged to bring blankets and sit on the lawn. No outside food or drinks will be permitted.

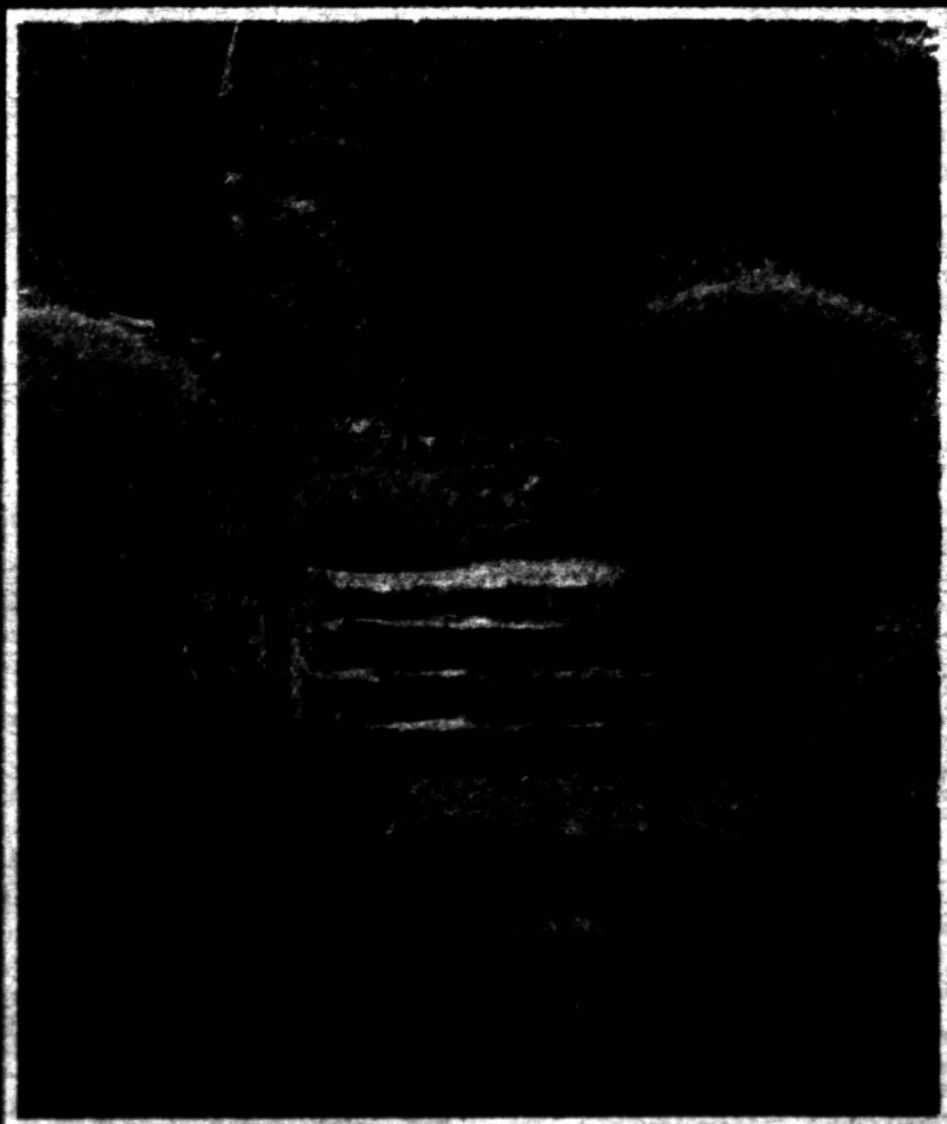

Use the Rancho San Carlos Road exit on Carmel Valley Road and follow the signs to Quail Meadows. Parking is limited and car pooling is encouraged. Information: 624-8511.

Legendary Big Sur

On an oak covered ridge line Kipp and Sherna Stewart have created one of the most beautiful homes on the California Coast. The home is richly appointed, yet elegant in simplicity. Working with terra cotta and glazed plaster interior walls, the Stewarts crafted rooms and settings that are cool and refreshing, with outlooks always to the gardens and coastal views. Smooth timber for floors and beamed ceilings create interiors that are understated, timeless and friendly to the spirit.

Al Smith's

"Carmel Legends"

No. 17

Since the days of Boccaccio, religious and sex have been — well, ah, bedfellows. Carmel has had little to do with the recent spate of televangelists' adventures, but we were in the thick of a similar even back in 1926. None of the Tales of the Decameron could match the amazing story of AIMEE SEMPLE MCPHERSON, the preeminent evangelist of her time, a healer of the sick, a powerful radio preacher and a consummate actress. She disappeared into the Pacific off Ocean Beach on May 16, 1926 and set in motion a hysterical tale. About 6 weeks later, on June 23, she reappeared in Douglas, Arizona, staggering in from the desert with a fantastic story of kidnapping. Later it was established that much of her time has been spent in the Benedict Cottage on Scenic Drive in Carmel in a romantic interlude with Kenneth Ormiston, manager of her radio station. If Carmel needed any reinforcement for its romantic reputation, this was it. You can still get an argument about the details.

Community Life Center may need EIR

By PAUL MILLER

CARMEL PRESBYTERIAN Church may have to prepare an environmental impact report for the 30,000 square foot building it wants to build on ag land at the east end of Rio Rd.

The recommendation for a "full blown" EIR came this week from the board of Community Service Area 50 which oversees flood prevention efforts at the mouth of Carmel Valley — an area of shopping centers and homes built in the floodplain of the Carmel River.

After the disastrous winters of 1995 and 1997, the CSA board and residents of the area it serves are very worried that any new development in the floodplain will make future floods worse.

Representatives of the church appeared before the board and a group of about 30 neighborhood residents Sept. 29 to offer assurances that the project will not add to the area's flood danger and, in fact, will make flooding less likely. "Our project will introduce Christian values to people of all ages in the community," project spokesman Gene Blattman, said. "It is in a perfect location because it will give students from Carmel Middle School a constructive place to go after school," he said. "We're certainly not here to add to anyone's problems," Community Life Center board member Erik Davidson told the group.

But board member Margaret Robbins, a real estate broker who lives in a housing development near the proposed project, wasn't convinced.

"The project has a lot of merit. But why here?" she asked.

The Community Life Center project includes a full-size basketball court and gymnasium, classrooms, a computer lab, and more than 200 parking spaces on a 5-acre site.

Board chairman Larry Levine said he was "shocked" when he saw that plans for the center included a drainage pipe that would penetrate a flood control levee that has just

Carmel to take ownership of Pescadero canyon property

By TAMARA GRIPPI

CARMEL CITY Administrator Jere Kersnar signed the water-for-land deal with property owner Tim Mallery Sept. 24 that will preserve four Pescadero lots as open space.

Under the arrangement, Mallery transfers ownership of his four lots to the city in exchange for the right to be able to use the .96 acre feet of water which belonged to the properties on other projects in the city.

The deal — the first of its kind in Carmel — ends a long chapter of debate over development of Mallery's Pescadero Canyon lots.

Mallery, who dreamed up the water-for-land deal, has told The Pine Cone that he saw no end in sight to delays that blocked development on his property.

City leaders are enthusiastic about the proposal, which comes after years of work to preserve open space in Pescadero Canyon.

Past attempts to preserve the Pescadero area, including land swaps, city funding for acquisition and private fund-raising efforts have not succeeded in preserving the property.

The Carmel portion of the canyon is located immediately north of Second Avenue on the north end of town near the boundary with Pebble Beach.

Mallery will be able to use the water credits on other projects in residential zoned areas.

The Carmel City Council first approved the deal last November. Meanwhile, the city is working with another Pescadero property owner, Kermit Dorius to put together a similar deal. Dorius owns one lot with .24 acre feet. An acre foot of water is about 320,000 gallons — enough to supply three or four average homes for one year.

Driving range permit appealed

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

MONTEREY COUNTY'S approval of an expansion of the driving range at Pebble Beach has been appealed to the California Coastal Commission by local activist David Dilworth.

The driving range expansion, which includes construction of a small building to house a bathroom, was okayed by the Board of Supervisors on a 4-1 vote (with Dave Potter dissenting) last month.

Dilworth's appeal says that the project's "adverse impacts on trails & environmentally sensitive habitats is not recognized or mitigated," and that "the proposal is inconsistent with Coastal Act policies regarding public access and public recreation."

The expansion project, which PB officials say is long overdue, will include removal of 120 pine trees, but each pine will be replaced by two, the company says.

During the hearing, a large group of citizens urged that the project be approved, while a group calling itself Concerned Residents of Pebble Beach opposed it.

Big Sur Land Trust gives Henry Miller Library to itself

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

A BIG SUR landmark will soon be on its own, Zad Leavy, Executive Director of the Big Sur Land Trust announced this week.

Last week, the land trust board adopted a resolution transferring ownership and management of the Henry Miller Library — located just off Highway 1 in Big Sur — to the library itself.

"There was no need for us to micro-manage the Library," Leavy said in a statement. "The library's executive director, Magnus Toren, was doing a super job. Now that the library has achieved a nonprofit, tax exempt status, we want to make it real," he said.

Personal property, the library's endowment, and all financial activities were transferred right away. Title to the library's real estate and buildings will be transferred in one year.

According to the land trust, the library was founded in 1981 by Emil White, a close friend of writer and artist Henry Miller who lived in Big Sur from 1944 to 1962. White, with the assistance of the land trust, converted his small three-room cabin into the library.

At his death in 1989, White bequeathed the library to the land trust so it could "promote and enhance the scholarly research and worldwide enjoyment of Henry Miller's literary and artistic works." Presently, the library serves as Big Sur's only community cultural resource center.

Miller's best known — and most controversial books, "Tropic of Cancer" and "Tropic of Capricorn" — were published in the 1930s while the author was living in Paris.

The books were welcomed in Europe but were considered obscene in the United States where they were banned until 1961.

Today, "they are considered breakthroughs in the use of realistic language and sensual image," a critic wrote after the author's death in 1980.

During his life, Miller spoke of Big Sur in the most glowing terms. The landscape gave him "such a feeling of contentment, such a feeling of gratitude was mine that instinctively my hand went up in benediction. Blessings!" he wrote.

"In transferring the management and title of the library, the two nonprofit organizations are mutually supportive. The library will continue to champion a cultural resource, and the Big Sur Land Trust will continue its mission as a land conservator, keeping the coast as peaceful and inspiring as Miller knew it to be," the land trust said.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Man on Mission complained that his neighbor's television was on too loud. Neighbor denied having the TV turned up. Advised to contact apartment manager for assistance.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Couple on Santa Fe are in process of getting a divorce. One party called to talk to their son. The other party stated son did not want to talk to first party. Both were advised not to call each other; to have their respective attorneys assist in coordinating custodial visits.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Owner of property on San Carlos called his house to get his messages and a male subject answered the phone. No one is supposed to be there. Officers check residence. No signs of forced entry, no indications that the house was occupied. Close patrol requested.

Carmel area: Doctors On Duty requested a welfare check on a Camino Del Monte resident. Individual contacted at the address reported that the subject went to the hospital at Travis Air Force Base.

Carmel Valley: Blue Nissan pickup truck observed traveling east on Cachagua Road towing a bike rider on the driver side of the truck. Vehicle pulled into Jensen's Camp, where it stopped near a trailer. Driver arrested for driving with a suspended license; passenger arrested for outstanding warrants and possession of marijuana.

Big Sur: Clear Ridge resident reported a known party shot her dog last week.

Carmel area: San Jose resident called to ask that a deputy attempt to locate his phone book, which he left in the pay phone at the Highlands Chevron. Unable to locate phone book, and unable to reach reporting party by telephone.

Carmel Valley: Subject intentionally ran her car into the victim's car at Carmel Valley Road and Laurel Drive.

Carmel area: Resident reported his surf board and related items were stolen from the back of his truck, which was unlocked and parked in a shopping center parking lot.

Carmel area: La Pradera resident wanted a report on file to document a strange telephone call she received not five minutes after returning home. The caller didn't identify him/herself and hung up without saying anything.

Carmel area: Vehicle observed on Carmel Valley Road near Highway One with registration as of Sept. 97. Traffic stop revealed that the vehicle was in fact unregistered. Vehicle was stored.

Carmel area: Carmel High School assistant principal reported that someone used green paint to write 2000 on the second story of the gym. It was also painted on the walls behind the gym.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22

Carmel Valley: Carmel Valley Road resident reported that on the morning of Sept. 20 she found a window screen pulled away from the frame.

Carmel area: Camino Del Monte resident reported that her husband had taken too many pain killers, and thought he may be suicidal. Found that subject had already been admitted to CHOMP and was under his doctor's care.

Carmel area: Oliver Road resident reported seeing a suspicious person at his neighbor's house. Subject contacted, and it was found that he had an appointment to do some work there.

Carmel area: Carmel High School student cited into juvenile probation for stealing an English test from room 28

Carmel area: Guest reported that her Tiffany's watch was missing. The last time she had seen the watch was on Aug. 30. She had placed the watch in a green men's shaving kit while camping at Sequoia National Park. She noticed the watch was missing on Sept. 9 while she was staying at the Carmel Mission Inn.

Carmel area: Mission Field Road resident reported that the construction work at Carmel River Inn was blowing dirt onto his property.

POLICE LOG

wife is the suspect.

Big Sur: Old Coast Road resident reported his neighbor has a sprinkler on his property which is making an annoying noise 24 hours a day.

Carmel Valley: Tassajara Road resident reported that a subject has not removed his vehicles from her property, per their agreement. It was explained to her that she could have them towed, but she could not afford to do so.

Carmel area: Carmel High School student reported his '83 Dodge Colt was vandalized during the night while it was parked at the auto shop. Suspects are possible skateboarders from the neighborhood.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 24

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Request from CHOMP to check on elderly female on Torres. Nobody home — CHOMP advised.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Contacted two men who were resting on the sidewalk on San Carlos. Both were en route to San Diego and left the area.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Woman on Oliver lost the key to her residence. Key was found at home. She left it in her bedroom and forgot she had left it there.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Suspicious person seen spreading papers near a bus stop on 6th. He explained that the papers were wet and he needed to dry them. Officer advised him to gather papers when dry and clean the area. Later, same individual was reported harassing patrons at a market. He was advised to leave the area.

Carmel area: Individual reported finding an open door to a Mesa Drive residence. Upon arrival, an interior search was conducted and nothing suspicious was found. Owner/resident was contacted and advised of the open door. The door was then secured.

Carmel area: Lazaro resident reported having an argument with her husband. She requested a standby while he left the residence. He left without incident.

Carmel area: Atherton Place resident reported having a verbal argument with her adult son.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 25

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Dispute at apartment building on Mission. One person complained that the other's TV was too loud. Second person disagrees and admitted yelling at first person but denied threatening him. First person said second person walked in front of first person's apartment and threatened him saying, "You're a dead man." Second person denied making any threats and said he will keep the TV volume down. Both agreed to call the police if any further problems arise between them. First person did not want to file a criminal report regarding the threats.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Welfare check requested on a dog within a vehicle on Ocean. The animal was fine.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: At restaurant on Junipero, management requested a civil standby while they asked an unruly group to leave. The group was a wedding party and left without incident.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Woman reported that while walking in the business area she saw a male and female, wearing blue jeans, following her. The subjects never made any gestures or attempts to contact woman. They were just in the same general area.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of two subjects, one male and one female, who appear to be disabled and in need of help. Unable to locate.

Carmel Valley: Carmel Valley resident reported three males were drinking in the ravine at Carmel Valley Road and Esquiline.

Carmel area: Carmel resident reported being hit in the arm after an argument in the Safeway parking lot. No prosecution desired.

Carmel Valley: Individual reported three male juveniles shooting off bottle rockets near East Carmel Valley Road. Area check made, unable to locate.

Carmel area: Hatton Road resident reported a structure fire at his house. Fire started because of a grease fire. Unknown estimated loss.

Carmel Valley: While directing traffic at an accident scene on Carmel Valley Road at Rancho San Carlos Road, a subject was stopped for erratic driving. Subject was found to be driving under the influence of alcohol. Arrested by CHP.

Carmel area: Carmel Knolls resident reported hearing noises on the upper deck at the sliding glass door. The upper residence was secure, with no signs of tampering, etc.

Carmel Valley: Country Club Way resident requested a welfare check on her 18-year-old boyfriend. Her boyfriend had been upset due to their break-up.

Carmel area: 1989 Ford pickup observed parked on Mission Fields Road with expired registration. Cited, towed and stored.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 26

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Woman reported that as she drove past the intersection of San Antonio and 4th unknown subject(s) threw an apple at her car. No damage. Information only.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of several subjects running into the storm drain at San Antonio and 4th. Unable to locate.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Four tourists taken to Mission Inn after waiting 1 and 1/2 hour for a taxi.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a subject — possibly drunk or disorderly — in the roadway on Ocean.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Individual on Carpenter counseled and warned about using a gas leaf blower.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Pearl necklace found on San Carlos. Finder wishes to claim if owner doesn't.

Carmel area: Individual reported she lost her gray wallet at Hacienda Carmel.

Pebble Beach: Vehicle observed failing to stop at the stop sign at Alvarado and 17 Mile Drive. The vehicle continued southbound and crossed the center divider into the northbound lane. It almost struck another vehicle traveling northbound in that lane. The driver had a suspended license and was arrested by the CHP for DUI.

Carmel area: Individual at Mid Valley Shopping Center reported that her husband threatened her during a mutual argument over their divorce.

"I-beams" of bedrock will be installed at the base of the bluff and tied together with special "pressure-treated" wood timbers.

The area would be filled in with soil and a second wall would be installed mid-way up the slope.

Because of the urgency of the project, Roseth granted the Panattonis an emergency exemption from a lengthy California Environmental Quality Act review.

However, the project must still be approved by the California Coastal Commission and the department of fish and game.

The Panattonis hope to start their repairs within two weeks. Even so, the two to three month project will be a race against time to avoid the further damage by the impending winter rains.

The couple began planning the repairs as soon as the damage had been done. Because the expense was "so unbelievable," they spent some time trying to bring the costs down.

The planning commissioners were sympathetic with the Panattoni's plight. "I saw those cracks out there," said Commissioner Pope Coleman. "With heavy rains and those cracks, I can see why everyone wants to get at this."

The multi-million dollar home has a colorful history. It was built in the 1920s and from 1962 to 1978 it was occupied by Count Bertrand d'Avenas and his family. The count sold the property to actor Gene Hackman, who stripped the interior. The house was then purchased by Craig McFarland, who was jailed for bank fraud in the early '90s after an international manhunt tracked him from Carmel to Morocco.

With winter coming, an impromptu barrier of plastic sheeting is the only thing keeping rain off the Panattoni's hillside. They hope to put a retaining wall in place very soon.

The Panattonis are keeping their fingers crossed that they will get the repairs completed in time, though they aren't encouraged by the light rain that has fallen so early in the season.

The engineer for the project, Carl Hooper, explained that the project has been modified to eliminate that pipe.

"Runoff from the roof and parking lot will be captured in a detention basin," Hopper told the crowd. "A pipe running underground from that basin will go directly to the Carmel River and it will limit outflow to the same level that would be there if the property stayed in agricultural use," he said.

"How can an open dirt trench keep water in?" one woman in the audience asked. "The last flood moved my refrigerator from the kitchen to the back bedroom," she said.

"And what happens when the detention basin is full?" Levine asked.

The board's recommendation for an EIR, which it said should also look at the project's impact on traffic congestion, goes to the Monterey County Planning Commission, which will again consider the Community Life Center project at its Oct. 14 meeting in Salinas.

Protecting oaks

Dear Editor:

The Sept. 25 Pine Cone article regarding the Forest and Beach Commission's recent request for replacement of an oak tree for a healthy one that would be removed and the conditions imposed implies that the commission acted with a lack of consideration for the absentee owner's pocketbook.

However, the commission's action seems logical to those who value Carmel's old oaks and understand what it takes to ensure their continued good health. Most real estate professionals tell us that trees enhance the value of property. One contractor/designer puts the added value at $50,000 for a lovely oak.

Quite often we find that people who are new to Carmel or intend to move here do not fully appreciate the importance of trees to the Carmel environment or the fact that trees are essential to the character of this village. They are attracted by the ambiance created by the urban forest but don't necessarily value the trees on their own property. Nor do they always realize that installing thirsty plants, lawns and sprinklers systems within the drip line of old oaks is a deadly combination often resulting in oak root fungus which causes the premature death of oaks that normally would live several hundred years. The conditions imposed that Mrs. Gallo remove the lawn and irrigation system from under the remaining oaks should not be a costly project.

The recent Design Traditions Study points out the fact that formal lawns are not a part of Carmel tradition. The replacement of a thirsty lawn with drought-resistant plants or simply allowing oak leaves to mulch the area should result in overall savings since the expenses of mowing, weeding, fertilizing and watering would be eliminated. Add to that the value of preserving the irreplaceable oaks in the front of the home and it is actually a bargain.

In making decisions, the Forest and Beach Commission always tries to discuss the options with the homeowner to determine a reasonable course of action that will preserve Carmel's urban forest and accommodate the property owner. Replacing trees and improving the environment of remaining trees is vital to our future forest. In this particular case, there was little remaining open space for replacement trees and thus preserving the remaining oaks became paramount in our decision.

Karen Ferlito, Chairperson
Carmel Forest and Beach Commission

'Hunter's' just punishment

Dear Editor:

Regarding the hunter with the crossbow: The injury he inflicted is the act of an ignorant soul.

I might suggest a proper punishment might be to stake him out on the driving range and allow anyone that wishes a free bucket of balls . . .

A taste of his own medicine would be justice.

Why DuVal's closed

Dear Editor:

There's been much speculation lately about why DuVal's Restaurant closed its doors in Carmel Valley recently. The reason is simple: the owner of Los Laureles Lodge and I disagreed on some significant points, and it was my choice to end our arrangement.

As soon as the right location is found, DuVal's will open, again DuVal's will serve the best barbecue in the world, and I will sing for my friends once more. I'm looking forward to this; I hope my friends are, too.

My special thanks to all the wonderful people who supported me during my time in Carmel Valley. I hope to see their smiling faces again as soon as DuVal's finds a place it can call home.
